WILSON GAINS SEVERAL POINTS

RAPID PROGRESS NOW BEING MADE AT PARIS PEACE Conference.

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, April 11.—More progress has been made in the peace conference during the past twenty-four hours than for the entire previous two weeks, according to advices received today at the White House from Paris.

Without giving details these advices indicated that some of the difficulties delaying the progress in negotiation had been overcome and that the president had secured the adoption of certain important points for which he had been contending.

MONROE DOCTRINE IS RECOGNIZED

CONFERENCE WILL EXEMPT
AMERICAN POLICY FROM COVENANT'S PROVISIONS.

By the Associated Press
PARIS, April 11.—At a meeting of the commission on the league of nations ten sections of the instrument were considered and passed. The Japanese amendment was not reached and the actual text of the section exempting the Monroe Doctrine from the provisions of the covenant is not yet available. The American commissioners, however, stated that the doctrine was definitely named and it is hope to complete the work at another meeting that will be held tonight.

The section regarding the Monroe Doctrine was prepared by Col. E. M. House of the American commission.

AGREEMENT ON MAIN QUESTIONS

REPORTED TREATY WILL BE READY FOR GERMANS IN SHORT TIME.

By the Associated Press
PARIS, April 11.—The peace conference has reached an agreement on all questions concerning peace with Germany, reparations, indemnities, frontiers of the Rhine and Poland, according to an interview in the Petit Journal with Private Secretary Premier Lloyd George. Certain details remain to be disposed of, it is added, but they will be settled in a day or two. German delegates will be summoned to Versailles within two or three weeks to hear the terms of the treaty.

R. R. MEN GET HIGHER WAGES

NEW ORDER AFFECTS 400,000;
INCREASE DATES FROM JANUARY 1.

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, April 11.—Wage advances aggregating $65,000,000, were ordered today by Director General Hines for 400,000 railroad engineers, firemen, trainmen and conductors in both passenger and freight service retroactive since January 1, 1919. Brotherhood demands for time and one-half for overtime was granted only for men engaged in yard service and for others this question was referred to the railroad administration board for adjustment. The average advance per man will be about $160 yearly.

AUTO COLLISION ON EAST MAIN STREET

A collision between the autos of Thos. H. Owen and R. E. Anderson, occurred early this morning, resulting in Mr. Owen being thrown to the pavement, his left arm dislocated and his nose broken. Though painful, his injuries are not thought to be serious.

The smashup occurred at the junction of Main and Hope. Mr. Owen was headed south and said the sun shining in his eyes prevented him seeing just how near he was to the other machine, which was going west. His car was overturned and damaged considerably. Very little damage was done to Mr. Anderson's car, it having been brought almost to a standstill in an endeavor to avoid the collision, it is stated.

Teach Children to Love Books.

Happy are the children of this day and age in that they have so many good books; in that if they cannot buy, they certainly can borrow from the public libraries. Here is one truth, a very simple truth, that all parents are under obligation to teach their children—that if they can learn to love books they can always forget the irritations of men and things; they can lay aside cares and still their passions; they can put their worries and disappointments to sleep.

Crusoe Overlooked a Bet.

That Robinson Crusoe, in spite of his well known resourcefulness, overlooked a fine business opportunity is shown by the fact that the island of his adventures, Mas-a-Tierra off the Juan Fernandez group off the coast of Chile, is now the seat of a large lobster-canning industry. Crusoe seemed to think he was doing remarkably well to pick up the necessities of life on that island—and most of them were washed ashore from a wreck at that—but its modern inhabitants do a rushing business in the export of luxuries.

4000 COAL MINERS MAY GO ON STRIKE

By the Associated Press
Muskogee, Okla., April 11.—A strike of approximately 4,000 union miners in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kansas properties of the Central Coal and Coke Co., will be called by John Wilkinson, president of District 21, at a conference here this afternoon. The strike has already been authorized by the executive board of the district and there is little doubt, according to Wilkinson that the strike will be called. The strike grows out of a four year old dispute over time.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Thomas K. Barnes, wealthy New Yorker, on a walking trip through New England, is caught in a storm miles from his destination. At a crossroads point he meets a girl in the same plight. While they discuss the situation an automobile, sent to meet the girl, arrives and Barnes is given a lift to Hart's tavern, while the girl is taken on to her destination, which she tells Barnes is a place called Green Fancy.

CHAPTER II.—At the tavern Barnes falls in with a stranded troupe of "barnstorming" actors, headed by Lyndon Rushcroft, and becomes interested in them.

CHAPTER III.—As the storm grows, Barnes finds himself worrying over the safety of the girl, traveling over the mountain roads at what he considers dangerous speed. He learns that Green Fancy is something of a house of mystery. Two mounted men leave the tavern in a manner which arouses Barnes' curiosity.

CHAPTER IV.—He meets "Miss Thackeray," leading lady of the stranded theatrical troupe, who is acting as chambermaid. That night he is aroused by the bringing of a dying man to the tavern, one of the two who had ridden away a short time before. They tell of finding the dead body of the other man. Both had been shot.

CHAPTER V.—The wounded man, registered at the tavern as Andrew Paul, dies, and Barnes is informed he must not leave until after the inquest. O'Dowd and De Soto, guests at Green Fancy, visit the tavern, apparently much mystified over the affair.

CHAPTER VI.

Charity Begins Far From Home, and a Stroll in the Wildwood Follows.

Mr. Rushcroft was furious when he arose at eleven o'clock on the morning after the double murder, having slept like a top through all of the commotion. He boomed all over the place, vocal castigations falling right and left on the guilty and the innocent without distinction.

"I don't see how you managed to sleep through it," Barnes broke in. "You must have an unusually clear conscience, Mr. Rushcroft."

"I haven't any conscience at all, sir," roared the star. "I had an unusually full stomach, that's what was the matter with me. I take oath now, sir, never to eat again as long as I live. A man who cannot govern his beastly appetite ought to defy it, if nothing else."

"I gather from that remark that you omitted breakfast this morning."

"Breakfast, sir? In God's name, I implore you not to refer to anything so disgusting as stewed prunes and bacon at a time like this. My mind is—"

"How about luncheon? Will you join me at twelve-thirty?"

"That's quite another matter," said Mr. Rushcroft readily. "Luncheon is an esthetic tribute to the physical intelligence of man, if you know what I mean. I shall be delighted to join you. 'Twelve-thirty, did you say?'"

"It would give me great pleasure if your daughter would also grace the festive board. I think it is too bad that she has to go about in the gown she wears, Mr. Rushcroft," said Barnes. "She's much too splendid for that. I have a proposition I'd like to make to you later on. I cannot make it, however, without consulting Miss Thackeray's feelings."

"My dear fellow!" beamed Rushcroft, seizing the other's hand. "One frequently reads in books about it coming like this, at first sight, but, damme, I never dreamed that it ever really happened. Count on me! She ought to leave the stage, the dear child. No more fitted to it than an Easter lily. Her place is in the home, the—"

"Good Lord, I am not thinking of—!" And Barnes, aghast, stopped before blurting out the words that leaped to his lips. "I mean to say this is a proposition that may also affect your excellent companions, Bacon and Dillingford, as well as yourself."

At twelve-thirty sharp Barnes came down from his room freshly shaved and brushed, to find not only Mr. Rushcroft and Miss Thackeray awaiting him in the office, but the Messrs. Dillingford and Bacon as well.

"I took the liberty, old fellow," said Rushcroft, addressing Barnes, "of asking my excellent co-workers to join us in our repast."

"Delighted to have you with us, gentlemen," said Barnes affably.

The sole topic of conversation for the first half hour was the mysterious slaying of their fellow lodgers. Mr. Rushcroft complained bitterly of the outrageous, high-handed action of the coroner and sheriff in imposing upon him and his company the same restrictions that had been applied to Barnes. They were not to leave the county until the authorities gave the word. One would have thought, to hear the star's indignant lamentations, that he and his party were in a position to depart when they pleased. It would have been difficult to imagine that he was not actually rolling in money instead of being absolutely penniless.

Barnes had been immersed in his own thoughts for some time. A slight frown, as of reflection, darkened his eyes. Suddenly—perhaps impolitely—he interrupted Mr. Rushcroft's flow of eloquence.

"Have you any objection, Mr. Rushcroft, to a more or less personal question concerning your own private—er—misfortunes?" he asked, leaning forward.

For a moment one could have heard a pin drop. Mr. Rushcroft evidently held his breath. There could be no mistake about that.

"It's rather delicate, but would you mind telling me just how much you were stuck up for by the—er—was it a writ of attachment?"

"It was," said the star. "A writ of inquisition, you might as well substitute. The act of a polluted, impetuous, parsimonious—what shall I say? Well, I will be as simple as possible—hotel keeper. Ninety-seven dollars and forty cents. For that pitiful amount he subjected me to—"

"Well, that isn't so bad," said Barnes, vastly relieved. He was covertly watching Miss Thackeray's half-averted face as he ventured upon the proposition he had decided to put before them. "I am prepared and willing to advance this amount, Mr. Rushcroft, and to take your personal note as security."

Rushcroft leaned back in his chair and stuck his thumbs in the armholes of his vest. He displayed no undue elation. Instead he affected profound calculations. His daughter shot a swift, searching look at the would-be Samaritan. There was a heightened color in her cheeks.

"Moreover, I shall be happy to increase the amount of the loan sufficiently to cover your return at once to New York, if you so desire—by train," Barnes smiled as he added the last two words.

"Extremely kind of you, my dear Barnes," said the actor, running his fingers through his hair. "Your faith in me is most gratifying. I—I really don't know what to say to you, sir."

"May I inquire just how you expect to profit by this transaction, Mr. Barnes?" Miss Thackeray asked steadily.

He started, catching her meaning.

"My dear Miss Thackeray," he exclaimed, "this transaction is solely between your father and me. I shall have no other claim to press."

"I wish I could believe that," she said.

"You may believe it," he assured her.

"It isn't the usual course," she said quietly, and her face brightened. "You are not like most men, Mr. Barnes."

"My dear child," said Rushcroft, "you must leave this matter to our friend and me. I fancy I know an honest man when I see him. My dear fellow, fortune is but temporarily frowning upon me. In a few weeks I shall be on my feet again, zipping along on the crest of the wave. I dare say I can return the money to you in a month or six weeks. If—"

"Oh, father!" cried Miss Thackeray. "We'll make it six months, and I'll pay any rate of interest you desire. Six per cent, eight per cent, ten per—"

"Six per cent, sir, and we will make it a year from date."

"Agreed. Get up and dance for us."

Dilly! We shall be in New York to-morrow!"

"You forget the dictatorial sheriff, Mr. Rushcroft," said Barnes.

"The varlet!" barked Mr. Rushcroft. "It was arranged that Dillingford and Bacon were to go to Hornville in a hired motor that afternoon, secure the judgment, pay the costs, and attend to the removal of the personal belongings of the stranded quartette from the hotel to Hart's Tavern. The younger actors stoutly refused to accept Barnes' offer to pay their board while at the Tavern. That, they declared, would be charity, and they preferred his friendship and his respect to anything of that sort. Miss Thackeray, however, was to be immediately relieved of her position as chambermaid. She was to become a paying guest."

Rushcroft took the whole affair with the most noteworthy complacency. He seemed to regard it as his due, or more properly speaking as if he were doing Barnes a great favor in allowing him to lend money to a person of his importance.

"A thought has just come to me, my dear fellow," he remarked as they arose from table. "With the proper kind of backing I could put over one of the most stupendous things the theater has known in fifty years. I don't mind saying to you—although it's rather sub rosa—that I have written a play—a four-act drama that will pack the biggest house on Broadway to the roof for as many months as we'd care to stay. Perhaps you will allow me to talk it over with you a little later on. You will be interested, I'm sure. Egad, sir, I'll read the play to you. I'll—What ho, landlord. Have your best automobile sent around to the door as quickly as possible. A couple of my men are going to Hornville to fetch hither my—"

"Just a minute," interrupted Putnam Jones, wholly unimpressed. "A man just called you up on the phone, Mr. Barnes. I told him you were entertaining royalty at lunch and couldn't be disturbed. So he asked me to have you call him up as soon as you revived. His words, not mine. Call up Mr. O'Dowd at Green Fancy. Here's the number."

The mellow voice of the Irishman soon responded to Barnes' call.

"I called you up to relieve your mind regarding the young woman who came last night," he said. "You observe that I say 'came.' She's quite all right, safe and sound, and no cause for uneasiness. I thought you meant that she was coming here as a guest, and so I made the very natural mistake of saying she hadn't come at all, at all. The young woman in question is Mrs. Van Dyke's maid. But, bless me soul, how was I to know she was even in existence, much less expected by train or motor or Shanks' mare? Well, she's here, so there's the end of our mystery."

Barnes was slow in replying. He was doubting his own ears. It was not conceivable that an ordinary—or even an extraordinary—lady's maid could have possessed the exquisite voice and manner of his chance acquaintance of the day before, or the temerity to order that sour-faced chauffeur about as if—The chauffeur!

"But I thought you said that Mr. Curtis' chauffeur was moon-faced and—"

"He is, bedad," broke in Mr. O'Dowd, chuckling. "That's what deceived me entirely, and no wonder. It wasn't Peter at all, but the rascallion washer who went after her. He was instructed to tell Peter to meet the four o'clock train, and the blockhead forgot to give the order. Bedad, what does he do but sneak out after her himself, scared out of his boots for fear of what he was to get from Peter. I had the whole story from Mrs. Van Dyke."

"Well, I'm tremendously relieved," said Barnes slowly.

"And so am I," said O'Dowd with conviction. "I have seen the heroine of our busted romance. She's a good-looking girl. I'm not surprised that she kept her veil down. If you were to leave it to me, though, I'd say that it's a sin to carry discretion so far as all that. You see what I mean, don't you?" His rich laugh came over the wire.

"Perfectly. Thank you for letting me know. My mind is at rest. Good-by." As he hung up the receiver he said to himself, "You are a most affable, convincing chap, Mr. O'Dowd, but I don't believe a word you say. That woman is no lady's maid, and you've known all the time that she was there."

At four o'clock he set out alone for a tramp up the mountain road in which the two men had been shot down. His mind was quite clear. Roon and Paul were not ordinary robbers. They were, no doubt, honest men. He would have said that they were thieves bent on burglarizing Green Fancy were it not for the disclosures of Miss Thackeray and the very convincing proof that they were not shot by the same man.

It was not beyond reason—indeed, it was quite probable—that they were trying to cross the border; in that event their real operations would be confined to the Canadian side of the line. He could not free himself of the suspicion that Green Fancy possessed the key to the situation. Roon and his companion could not have had the slightest interest in his movements up to the instant he encountered the young woman at the crossroads. His busy brain suddenly suffered the shock of a distinct conclusion. Was she a fellow conspirator? Was she the inside worker at Green Fancy in a well-laid plan to rifle the place?

Could it be possible that she was the confederate of these painstaking agents who lurked with sinister patience outside the very gates of the place called Green Fancy?

His ramble carried him far beyond the spot where Roon's body was found and where young Conley had come upon the tethered horses. His eager, curious gaze swept the forest to the left of the road in search of Green Fancy. Overcome by a rash, daring impulse, he climbed over the stake and rider fence and sauntered among the big trees which so far had obscured the house from view. The trees grew very thickly on the slope, and they were unusually large. He progressed deeper into the wood. At the end of what must have been a mile he halted. There was no sign of habitation, no indication that man had ever penetrated so far into the forest. As he was on the point of retracing his steps toward the road his gaze fell upon a huge moss-covered rock less than a hundred yards away. He stared, and gradually it began to take on angles and planes and recesses of the most astounding symmetry. Under his widening gaze it was transformed into a substantial object of cubes and gables and—yes, windows.

He was looking upon the strange home of the even stranger Mr. Curtis—Green Fancy.

Now he understood why it was called Green Fancy. Its surroundings were no greener than itself; it seemed to melt into the foliage, to become a part of the natural landscape. Mountain ivy literally enveloped it. Exposed sections of the house were painted green; the doors were green; the leafy porches and their columns, the chimney pots, the window hangings—all were the color of the unchanging forest. And it was a place of huge dimensions, low and long and rambling.

"Gad," he said to himself, "what manner of crank is he who would bury himself like this? Of all the crazy ideas I ever—"

His reflections ended there. A woman crossed his vision; a woman strolling slowly toward him through the intricate avenues of the wildwood.

CHAPTER VII.

Spun-Gold Hair, Blue Eyes and Various Encounters.

She was quite unaware of his presence, and yet he was directly in her path, though some distance away. Her head was bent; her mien was thoughtful, her stride slow and aimless.

She was slender, graceful and evidently quite tall, although she seemed a pigmy among the towering giants that attended her stroll. Her hands were thrust deep into the pocket of a white duck skirt. A glance revealed white shoes and trim ankles in blue. She wore no hat. Her hair was like spun gold, thick, wavy and shimmering in the subdued light.

Suddenly She Stopped and Looked Up.

Suddenly she stopped and looked up. She had a full view of her face as she gazed about as if startled by some unexpected, even alarming sound. For a second or two he held his breath, stunned by the amazing loveliness that was revealed to him. Then she discovered him standing there.

In a flash he realized that he was face to face with the stranger of the day before. He took two or three impulsive steps forward, his hand going to his hat—and then halted. Evidently his senses had deceived him. There was no smile in her eyes—and yet he could have sworn that it was there an instant before. Instead there was a level stare.

"I am sorry if I startled—" he began.

The figure of a man appeared as if discharged bodily from some magic tree-trunk, and stood directly in his path—a tall, rugged man in overalls was he, who held a spade in his hand and eyed him inimically. Without another glance in his direction the first and more pleasing vision turned on her heel and continued her stroll, sauntering off to the right, her fair head once more bent in study her back eloquently indifferent to the gaze that followed her.

"Who do you want to see?" inquired the man with the spade.

Before Barnes could reply a hearty voice accosted him from behind. He whirled and saw O'Dowd approaching, not twenty yards away. The Irishman's face was aglow with pleasure.

"I knew I couldn't be mistaken in the shape of you," he cried, advancing with outstretched hand. "You've got the breadth of a dockhand in your shoulders and the trimness of a prize fighter in your waist."

"They shook hands," said Barnes. His glance went over his shoulder as he spoke. The man with the spade had been swallowed up by the earth! He could not have vanished more quickly in any other way. Off among the trees were intermittent flashes of blue and white.

"I am quite sure you are," said O'Dowd promptly but without a trace of unfriendliness in his manner. "Bedad, loving him as I do, I can't help saying that Curtis is a bally old crank. Mind ye, I'd say it to his face—I often do, for the matter of that. Of course," he went on seriously, "he is a sick man, poor devil. You see I've known him for a dozen years and more, and he likes me, though God knows why, unless it may be that I once did his son a good turn in London."

"Sufficient excuse for repatriation, I should say," smiled Barnes.

"I introduced the lad to me only sister," said O'Dowd, "and she kept him happy for the next ten years. No doubt I also provided Mr. Curtis with three grandchildren he might never have had but for my graciousness."

A look of distress came into his merry eyes. "By Jove, I'd like nothing better than to ask you in to have a dish of tea—it's teatime, I'm sure—but I'd no more think of doing it than I'd consider cutting off my head. He doesn't like strangers. He—"

"My dear fellow, don't distress yourself," cried Barnes heartily. "There isn't the least reason in the world why—"

"You see, the poor old chap asks us up here once or twice a year—that is to say, De Soto and me—to keep his sister from filling the house up with men he can't endure. So long as we occupy the only available rooms, he argues, she can't stuff them full of objectionables. Twice a year she comes for a month. In the late fall and early spring."

"Why does he continue to live in this out-of-the-world spot? He is an old man, I take it, and ill."

"You wouldn't be wondering if you knew the man," said O'Dowd. "He is a scholar, a dreamer, a sufferer. He's not a very old man at that. Not more than sixty-five."

"He certainly has a fanciful streak in him, building a place like that," said Barnes, looking not at the house but into the thicket above. There was no sign of the blue and white and the spun gold that still defied exclusion from his mind's eye. He had not recovered from the thrill into which the vision of loveliness plunged him. He was still a trifle dazed and distraught.

"Right you are," agreed O'Dowd; "the queerest streak in the world. It's his notion of simplicity."

"Green Fancy. Is that the name he gave the place or does it spring from—"

"'Twas christened by me own sister, Mr. Barnes, the first time she was here, two years ago. I'll walk with you to the fence beyond if you've no objections," said O'Dowd genially, and linked his arm through that of Barnes.

The latter was at once subtly aware of the fact that he was being deliberately conducted from the grounds. Moreover, he was now convinced that O'Dowd had been close upon his heels from the instant he entered them. There was something uncanny in the feeling that possessed him. Such espionage as this signified something deep and imperative in the presence not only of O'Dowd but the Jack-in-the-box gardener a few minutes earlier.

His mind was still full of the lovely stranger about whom O'Dowd had so manifestly lied over the telephone.

"I must ask you to apologize to the young lady on whom I blundered a few moments ago, Mr. O'Dowd. She must have been startled. Pray convey to her my solicitude and excuses."

"Consider it done, my dear sir," said the Irishman. "Our most charming and seductive guest," he went on. "Bedad, of the two of you, I'll stake me head you were startled the most. Coming suddenly upon such rare loveliness is almost equivalent to being struck by a bolt of lightning. More than one painter of portraits has said that she is the most beautiful woman in the world. Mayhap you have heard of her. She is Miss Cameron of New Orleans, a friend of Mrs. Van Dyke. We have quite an enchanting house party, Mr. Barnes, if you consider no more than the feminine side of it. By the way, have you heard when the coroner is to hold his inquests?"

"Nothing d'ute. He may wait a week," said Barnes.

"I suppose you'll stick around until it's over," ventured O'Dowd. Barnes thought he detected a slight harshness in his voice.

"I have quite made up my mind to stay until the mystery is entirely cleared up," he said. "The case is so interesting that I don't want to miss a shred of it."

"I don't blame ye," said O'Dowd heartily. "I'd like nothing better myself than to mix up in it. The next time you plan to pay us a visit, telephone in advance. I may be able to persuade my host that you're a decent, law-abiding, educated gentleman, and he'll consent to receive you at Green Fancy. Good day to ye," and he shook hands with the departing trespasser.

"Takin' a walk?" was the landlord's greeting as Barnes mounted the tavern steps at dusk.

"Going over the grounds of last night's affair," responded Barnes, pausing.

As he entered the door he was acutely aware of an intense stare leveled at him from behind by the landlord of Hart's Tavern. Half way up the stairway he stopped short and with difficulty repressed the exclamation that rose to his lips.

He had recalled a significant incident of the night before. Almost immediately after the departure of Roon and Paul from the Tavern Putnam Jones had made his way to the telephone behind the desk and had called a number in a loud, brisk voice, but the subsequent conversation was carried on in subdued tones, attended by haste and occasional furtive glances in the direction of the taproom.

Upon reaching his room Barnes permitted the suppressed emotion to escape his lips in the shape of a soft whistle, which if it could have been translated into words would have said: "By Gad, why haven't I thought of it before? He sent out the warning that Roon and Paul were on the way! And I'd like to bet my last dollar that someone at Green Fancy had the other end of the wire."

Mr. Rushcroft was giving Hamlet's address to the players, in the taproom when Barnes came downstairs at nine o'clock.

A small, dark man who sat alone at a table in the corner caught Barnes' eye and smiled almost mournfully. He was undoubtedly a stranger; his action was meant to convey to Barnes the information that he too was from a distant and sophisticated community and that a bond of sympathy existed between them.

Putnam Jones spoke suddenly at Barnes' shoulder. He started involuntarily. The man was beginning to get on his nerves. He seemed to be dogging his footsteps with ceaseless persistency.

"That feller over there in the corner," said Jones softly, "is a book agent from your town. He sold me a set of Dickens when he was here last time, about six weeks ago. A year's subscription to two magazines thrown in. By gosh, these book agents are slick ones."

"He's a shrewd-looking chap," commented Barnes.

"Says he won't be satisfied till he's made this section of the country the most cultured, refined spot in the United States," said Jones dolefully. "Excuse me. There goes the telephone. Maybe it's news from the sheriff."

With the spasmodic tinkling of the telephone bell the book agent arose and made his way to the little office. Barnes glanced over his shoulder a moment later and saw him studying the register. The pulse of his sleek head, however, suggested a listening attitude. Putnam Jones, not four feet away, was speaking into the telephone receiver. As the receiver was restored to its hook Barnes turned again. Jones and the book agent were examining the register, their heads almost meeting from opposite sides of the desk.

The latter straightened up, stretched his arms, yawned, and announced in a loud tone that he guessed he'd stop out and get a bit of fresh air before turning in.

"Any news?" inquired Barnes, approaching the desk after the door had closed behind the book agent.

"It wasn't the sheriff," replied Jones shortly, and immediately resumed his interrupted discourse on books and book agents. Ten minutes elapsed before the landlord's garrulity was checked by the sound of an automobile coming to a stop in front of the house. Barnes turned expectantly toward the door. Almost immediately the car started again, with a loud shifting of gears, and a moment later the door opened to admit, not a fresh arrival but the little book agent.

"Party trying to make Hornville tonight," he announced casually. "Well, good night. See you in the morning."

Barnes was not in a position to doubt the fellow's word, for the car unmistakably had gone on toward Hornville. He waited a few minutes after the man disappeared up the narrow stairway, and then proceeded to test his powers of divination. He was as sure as he could be sure of anything that had not actually come to pass that in a short time the automobile would again pass the tavern, but this time from the direction of Hornville.

Lighting a cigarette he strolled outside. He had barely time to take a position at the darkened end of the porch before the sounds of an approaching machine came to his ears. A second or two later the lights swung around the bend in the road a quarter of a mile above Hart's Tavern, and down came the car at a high rate of speed. It dashed past the tavern with a great roar and rattle and shot off into the darkness beyond. As it rushed through the dim circle of light in front of the tavern Barnes succeeded in obtaining a brief but convincing view of the car. That glance was enough, however. He would have been willing to go before a jury and swear that it was the same car that had deposited him at Hart's Tavern the day before.

Having guessed correctly in the one instance he allowed himself another and even bolder guess—the little book agent had either received a message from or delivered one to the occupant or driver of the car from Green Fancy.

The Memorial Gateway—Part II.
By Pres. J. M. Gordon

We closed our discussion yesterday with a feeling that some ever-present, well-designed memorial ought to be erected as the smallest token of appreciation for the sacrifices made by East Central men who had joined the colors. The question of cost and the method of raising the money was hinted at with a promise to enlarge on these features in today's issue.

It is well to keep in mind that the eleven counties in the East Central District are uniting in the campaign to raise the funds for the memorial. However, each county's share is based upon its prorata enrollment in the Normal for the past two years. Ada and Pontotoc county have furnished a large part of the enrollment, indeed a little more than one-half of it. This counts the people who have moved to Ada for the benefit of the Normal and public schools as well as those who make this their permanent home. Furthermore, Ada will have the full benefit of the gateway, as it will prove to be a decided adornment to the town.

The cost of the memorial is estimated to be about $4500 to $5000. To Ada and Pontotoc County has been apportioned one-half of this amount. Manifestly Ada will wish to contribute a very large share of this.

How is this amount to be raised? Suppose we hold this question for Saturday's issue of the News.

Simon and Anna.
Luke 11:25-39.

This picture of age meeting youth in the Temple is beautiful to the seeing eye. These saints had waited long and their waiting was rewarded. This impresses us that we should never give up hoping. When Alexander crossed Asia he gave to his friends almost everything, and one of his officers asked, "But what do you retain for yourself?" The great man replied, "I keep hope." These old saints waited for the consolation of Israel and Jesus was forthcoming. They found more than they had been looking for. They found the Messiah of God. To them the performance was greater than the promise. They saw Jesus in the Temple, in the House of God they found the Son of God. We miss him if we refrain from church going. When they saw Jesus they were ready to die. A man is never ready for death until he meets Jesus face to face. We all may today take this Divine Babe from the trampling arms of the saints who met him in the Temple.

Donaghey-Woods.

The marriage of Mrs. Fannie Woods and M. B. Donaghey was very quietly solemnized Wednesday evening at the home of Rev. Moore, pastor of the Methodist church. The ceremony was witnessed by Rev. Moore and wife only.

The bride wore her traveling suit of tan cloth with accessories to harmonize. After the ceremony, the bride and groom started their journey homeward, dodging all passers by in order to keep their marriage secret. The following morning congratulations began to rush over the wires, hence the secret was revealed.

Mr. and Mrs. Donaghey will be at their new home after April 10th.—Allen Hustler.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. E. FITZWATER, D. D.,
Teacher of English Bible in the Moody
Bible Institute of Chicago.)
Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union

LESSON FOR APRIL 13

CHRIST OUR SAVIOR.

LESSON TEXTS: John 1:35-51; Matthew 28:18; John 3:16; Romans 8:31, 32.
GOLDEN TEXT: God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus our friend and savior.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What Jesus does for us.

INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—Our Lord and savior.

I. Who Jesus is (John 1:35-51).

It is absolutely indispensable that every pupil regardless of age should know clearly who Jesus is and what he came into the world for. It should be the ardent desire of every teacher to make so clear the person and work of Christ that the pupils may accept him as their Saviour. Nothing short of his Deity and vicarious atonement will avail for salvation. What he is set forth to be is through personal testimony. For the most part that which he was found to be is through personal investigation.

1. The Lamb of God (v. 36). John testified that he is the Lamb of God—the world's sin bearer. The word used and the idea conveyed carry us back to Isaiah 53 and forward to Jesus on the cross bearing our sins in his own body. Christ had been definitely pointed out to John by the Holy Spirit (vv. 33, 34).

2. The Messiah (v. 41). At the invitation of Jesus, the disciples went and abode with him for a day. As a result of that day with Jesus they testified that he is the Messiah. He is that one whom God had anointed to be the Saviour of men.

3. The Son of God (v. 49). Nathaniel was interested through the testimony of a friend. Philip told him that he had found Jesus of Nazareth, of whom Moses had written. He knew that Nazareth was not the birthplace of the Messiah, therefore he inquired: "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" At the invitation of Philip he made a personal investigation. As a result he testified that Jesus was the Son of God, the King of Israel.

4. The Son of Man (v. 51). This is Christ's own testimony. It shows that he is the Messiah who, according to Daniel's prediction (Dan. 7:13), would appear in divine glory and establish a universal and eternal kingdom. In this testimony of Jesus is foreshadowed the union of man and God, and through him the establishment of a medium of communication between earth and heaven. This is the reality of Jacob's vision at Bethel (Gen. 28:12).

II. His Mission in the World (Matt. 20:27, 28; John 3:16).

He came to give his life a ransom for many. The world was lost in sin—about to perish. Christ voluntarily gave his life—died instead of the sinner.

1. The world is dying like the Israelites, because bitten by the serpent of sin.

2. Christ, like the brazen serpent, has been lifted up upon the cross as the remedy for sin (John 3:14, 15).

3. As the Israelites must look up to the uplifted serpent, so those who would be saved must believe on Jesus Christ (John 3:16). While looking by faith to the crucified Christ saves from the death-sting of the serpent, a neglect or refusal to believe on him means to perish.

4. This provision was made by God. It emanated from his love (John 3:16). "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son."

III. What He Gives (Rom. 8:31, 32). God gave his Son to save a dying world. Those who accept his Son have God on their side. He that spared his Son will freely give all things to those who receive him. He even makes all things work together for good to them who love him (Rom. 8:28).

Obedience Required.

The Bible rings with one long demand for obedience. The key word of the book of Deuteronomy is "Observe and do." The burden of our Lord's farewell discourse is, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." We must not question or reply or excuse ourselves. We must not pick and choose our way. We must not think that obedience in one direction will compensate for disobedience in some other particular. God gives one command at a time; if we obey this he will flood our soul with blessing, and lead us forward into new paths and pastures. But if we refuse we shall remain stagnant and waterlogged, make no progress in Christian experience, and lack both power and joy.—F. B. Meyer.

God's Love.

Those who love God are encompassed with gladness on every side, because in every passing moment they see and feel a Father's love, and nothing of this world can take it away or lessen it.—Lear.

Every Man.

Depend upon this truth, that every man is the worse looked upon, and the less trusted, for being thought to have no religion; in spite of all the pompous and specious epithets he may assume.—Chesterfield.

A REAL LIVE ONE.

The Ada News is one of those newspapers that is an asset to the community in which it is published. The News is a booster, yet it finds time to criticize, but does it so cleverly that the object of its shaft must take it in good spirit unless he's a grouch. The News is boosting Ada, and is destined to do a great work in building up a progressive city.—Miami Daily News.

Under the heading, "It Pays to Advertise," Senator Luther Harrison reproduces in his paper, the Star-Democrat, the comments of several papers regarding the report that he will be a candidate for the United States senate against T. P. Gore. Come to think about it Ada would be in the swim politically with both a congressman and United States Senator, and Harrison could make Mr. Gore "mighty hard to catch" in a campaign.

The men who make a success of farming are generally the men who are willing to do their part in the community to help their less fortunate neighbors. They are the men that may be depended upon to bear their part of criticism and opposition from those who are satisfied with traditional methods of farming and antiquated ideas of progress. But successful leaders expect opposition and are not deterred from leading the way to rural advancement.—Farm & Ranch.

Violent methods never pay. A case in point occurred at Okmulgee a few days ago when a county commissioner assaulted the editor of the Okmulgee Democrat. The paper has roasted him severely for alleged shortcomings, especially in handling the proceeds of the $800,000 bond issue voted for good roads. Instead of shutting the editor's mouth the assailant only came in for a hotter roast than before and a mass meeting of citizens demanded a grand jury investigation of the conduct of county officials, and that the attorney general appoint one of his assistants to help with the investigation. If the commissioner's official record proves to be crooked he will have reason to wish he had let well enough alone.

A GREAT MAN GONE.

The death of Dr. R. C. Buckner at Dallas removes one of the greatest philanthropists of the century. Human life is of far greater importance than millions of money and the man who conserves life and directs it into proper channels is a benefactor, not only to the individuals themselves, but to the state as whole which thus receives useful citizens instead of criminals as might otherwise be the case.

During his long and useful career thousands of orphans came under his care and were sent into the world prepared to meet its conditions and ready to do their part in the world's works. Without this aid it is not difficult to see how hard their lot might have been and how easy it would have been for them to drift into crime. He was the only father these thousands knew and thousands weep for him who came to the rescue when they were in need of a strong friend and rise up and call him blessed. He loved his fellowman, especially the weak and helpless and his reward will indeed be great.

A GOOD CAUSE.

The readers of the News should by all means read the letter from Pres. Gordon in another column of this paper concerning the proposed memorial gateway at the normal commemorating the service of former students of the normal in the war. Six of them will not return, but this gateway will perpetuate their memory and the names of those who are returning will be placed there to be seen by generations to come. The News would like to see a memorial with the name of every boy who went into service from Pontotoc county inscribed on it, and this will probably be taken up and carried through at the proper time, but in the meantime this memorial to normal students should by all means be encouraged and supported. East Central has a record to be proud of and it should be put in such substantial form that the world may know of it. Otherwise, it will become only a tradition among the students of the next generation and that will be all.

Useful Weights.

The following weights may not be exact, but they are near enough for ordinary calculations:

One cubic foot of water, 66.4 pounds.
A volume of air equal to 12.4 cubic feet weighs 1 pound.
One barrel contains 31 1-2 gallons.
One cubic foot of water contains 7.48 gallons.
One gallon of water weighs about 8 1-3 pounds.
One pint of water weighs about 1 pound.
Pine weighs about 35 pounds per cubic foot.
Oak weighs about 45 pounds per cubic foot.
Concrete weighs about 150 pounds per cubic foot.
Stone weighs from 135 to 200 pounds per cubic foot.
17 cubic feet of clay weigh about a ton.
18 cubic feet of gravel in bank weigh about a ton.
27 cubic feet of gravel, dry, weigh about a ton.
Lime weighs 75 pounds per bushel.

AT THE PLAY HOUSES

AMERICAN.

Elsie Ferguson appears in the Paramount drama, Under the Greenwood Tree. In this the society belle is transformed into a Gypsy girl. It is a picture such as only the Paramount turns out, and there are none better.

LIBERTY.

The Bobby Greer comedians will give one of their best programs. Every feature new. The picture program presents Earle Williams in the secret service drama, The Man Who Wouldn't Tell.

Environment Counts.

It is well to remember that environment has much to do with achievement. Associate only with those who are full of enthusiasm and determined to succeed. Keep close to people who encourage you. Create peace in the home. Make of it a harbor of refuge, a means of escape from a work-a-day world. If you will do this, you will soon find yourself well on the road to success.—Fern Howard.

Honduras Attractive.

With a population estimated at 600,000 and an area approximately equal to that of Pennsylvania, Honduras has abundant room for development. It has a tropical climate with few of the usual disadvantages. The interior is mountainous and salubrious, with considerable rich land suitable for diversified farming and fruit growing, while all of the remainder, even the deep mountain slopes, is used for pasturage.

Custom Hard to Down.

Pens made of feathers were common in the seventh century, but so inveterate was the old habit of writing with reeds on parchment and paper that it continued a long time after the first use of quills. The custom of carrying a pen behind the ear is ancient, as may be seen in the life of St. Odo: "He saw a pen sticking in his ear in the manner of a writer."

UNION LABOR BEHIND VICTORY LOAN DRIVE

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 11.—(Special).—The unqualified support of Union Labor to the Victory Loan campaign was officially pledged today by the State Federation of Labor. Union Labor today will be one of the picturesque features of the campaign. When joint meetings of local unions of all trades will be held, probably at night, a state speaker of prominence will be sent to address each of these gatherings.

No special day has been designated throughout the state as Union Labor Day, but each county will name its own day.

The trades councils of Oklahoma City beat the state federation to this when at a meeting last night a committee was organized to tender its support to the county chairman of the Victory Loan Committee.

"Union Labor has never failed the government and will not on this occasion," declared Edgar Fenton, president of the State Federation of Labor. "To the patriotic motive which actuated them during previous campaigns is now added the powerful incentive to make the Victory Loan a success in order that the government might carry out its reconstruction program in order to prevent widespread unemployment, as this vitally affects labor in general."

Importation of Intestines.

Intestines are imported into the United States from China to the extent of nearly $400,000 worth a year. They are used by packing houses for sausage casings. The intestines are prepared for shipping at Shanghai, Hankow, or Tientsin by being scraped, cleaned and preserved with salt and salt water, and packed in oak barrels having a capacity of 2,500 to 3,000 bundles with about 30 per cent salt. Pig intestines are exported in a dried condition.

Law of Compensation.

The law of compensation is, even in these wonderful modern days, very much in evidence. Most of us—in fact, all of us—receive from the world just what we give to it. Smiles and happy words will fall from other lips to us if we ourselves play the same role; but if we are too busy or too "big" to practice these little courtesies we should not be surprised to see only frowns on the faces we meet.

Canning.

The French were the first people to preserve fruits and vegetables. This was away back in 1810. The French government offered a prize for the best method of storing foods during the winter months, and among the solutions was the canning process. America invented the fruit jar and brought the canning industry to be one of the largest and most important in the world, running into billions of dollars annually.

Black Marble.

Black marble may be cleaned with a mixture of equal parts of pearl ash and soft soap. Apply this with a flannel and let it remain on for some minutes. Then rinse, first with warm and then with cold water. When dry polish with a paraffin cloth until it shines.

FAMILY AT OWL CREEK POISONED

TWO CHILDREN DEAD, ANOTHER IN DYING CONDITION AND FATHER VERY ILL.

Two children dead, one grown boy in a dying condition and the father not expected to live, is the situation of the family of J. G. Bramhall of Owl Creek community near Stone-wall.

For the past week or ten days they have suffered from a mysterious illness supposed to be due to some kind of poison poisoned water being suspected. An analysis of the water made at the Faust hospital today failed to show poison, but further tests will be made to ascertain if poison is present in the water or elsewhere.

Skilled in Fine Work.

One of the trades calling for the greatest skill is the making of compasses. This work had never been undertaken by women until dilution of labor became necessary. Of the infinite number of delicate parts demanding absolute accuracy, women have succeeded in making all but two or three and even these will shortly be to their credit.

Poor Relative's Figure.

She said with a sigh, "My, how glad I am that I have a poor relative's figure! I can wear anything from the frocks made for Cousin Anne, who is nearly six feet and looks like a clothespin, to the suits built for Cousin Jane, who is five feet and weighs one hundred and eighty!"

Arab Consideration.

There is a story told of an Arab who possessed a beautiful and valuable steed. His companions were ready to start their journey and wanted to know why he had not saddled his horse. "Because I am angry," was his reply.

Children's Logic.

"Do you know," said a little fellow of four years of age, "what I thought dark was? A great, huge live thing, the color of black, with mouth and eyes." Another assured his teacher that the wind was alive, for he heard it whistling in the night.

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

Never were the people — the buying public—more ready and able to buy than they are today.

There is no scarcity of money. The purchasing power in America today is greater than in all history. The field for new and greater business development is here.

Advertising is the certain, quick, and economical method of developing your business.

When you put the power of advertising promotion and its great economies back of your own business, you are also spreading the spirit of optimism and good will.

The U. S. Department of Labor urges all progressive merchants and manufacturers—in fact, all who have anything to sell—to advertise now and take advantage of the great market which exists at this time.

Aid in Self-Mastery.

It is a good practice for people to make a practice of doing something every day for their development, that they don't want to do, and then to deny themselves every day something they want. This should not be for a day, a week or a year, but a life work. In no other way can a man become master of himself.—Dr. J. H. Telden.

White Paper.

The white paper of which newspapers are made is 98 per cent spruce wood that has been reduced to a pulp and then converted into paper. No other wood is as available for this purpose, and in making newspaper, cardboard and other papers and paper products this country consumes 5,500,000 cords of spruce wood yearly. —Kansas City Times.

The Lucky Horseshoe.

The superstitious use of horseshoes as emblems of good luck originated in England in the seventeenth century. They were at first deemed a protection against witches and evil spirits, and were nailed on doors of houses with the curve uppermost. The custom of nailing horseshoes to ships and other sailing craft is still in vogue.

Preserve Apples.

Use dry sand which has been heated and cooled again. Cover the bottom of a stone jar with sand, put in one layer of apples, having the fruit about one-half inch apart, cover with sand, put in another layer of apples, and so on till the jar is full. The jar must be closed air-tight and kept in a cool place. The sand will keep the apples dry and preserve the flavor.

Fir Turpentine.

Copenhagen engineers are experimenting with the production of turpentine from fir trees, the roots and twigs being used as well as the trunk. —Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Unreasonable.

"You are two-faced. You let another fellow kiss you." "Well, if I have two faces, what's your kick?"

PLANS FOR VICTORY LOAN DRIVE APRIL 27

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 10.—(Special)—Every Oklahoman subscribing for Victory Bonds on volunteer day, April 27, will be tagged with a neat disc containing the words, "I am a volunteer." These discs are expected to be worn through out the campaign to indicate the voluntary patriots and to avoid re-solicitation on the part of committees. One hundred thousand of these tags are being sent out today to county chairmen for distribution.

In the larger cities volunteer stations arranged on the order of polling places will be located in every block but two or more blocks may constitute a district in the suburbs. Large posters announcing the location of volunteer stations will be posted in every block. Each block or district on volunteer day will be in charge of a captain who will have made a canvass of the block and will have in his possession a record of the war loans made by each resident.

Hundreds of autos have been volunteered for use in the victory loan campaign and these will be placarded with stickers which are being sent out today.

TROUBLES COST HIM A FORTUNE

Texas Farmer Suffered For Fifteen Years—Is Relieved by Tanlac.

"A few bottles of Tanlac have done me more good than other medicines and treatments that cost me a small fortune," said C. C. Fisher, a prosperous farmer living at Irving, Route 1, a few miles from Dallas, Tex.

"For fifteen years," he continued, "I suffered so terribly from stomach trouble that I thought I could never get well. Everything I would eat went back on me and I would belch up my food so sour that it would nearly strangle me the gas on my stomach would press on my heart so as to cause it to flutter and I would have the hardest time getting my breath. I was really in such awful condition that I felt like I had about got to the end of my row."

"But I feel now like I am good for many years yet, for Tanlac has fixed me up so I can eat any and everything without any bad after effects and since gas has stopped forming in my stomach I am not troubled with palpitations or shortness of breath. I have gained six pounds already and am working hard on my farm every day now and am glad to recommend Tanlac for the wonderful way it has helped me."

Tanlac is sold in Ada by Gwin & Mays Drug Co.

HEALING THE HURTS OF MEN DISABLED IN THE SERVICE

More Than 200,000 Are Under Treatment Here and Overseas—Provision Made for Compensation and Insurance—Government to Retrain and Restore Them to Self-Supporting Activity.

Washington.—President Wilson, in a letter to the federal board of vocational education, has called attention to the fact that the government stands squarely back of its disabled fighting men. His letter follows:

This nation has no more solemn obligation than healing the hurts of our wounded and restoring our disabled men to civil life and opportunity. The government recognizes this, and the fulfillment of the obligation is going forward fully and generously. The medical divisions of the war and navy departments are rendering all aid that skill and science make possible; the federal board for vocational education is commanded by law to develop and adapt the remaining capabilities of each man so that he may again take his place in the ranks of our great civilian army. The co-operation and interest of our citizens is essential to this program of duty, justice and humanity. It is not a charity. It is merely the payment of a draft of honor which the United States of America accepted when it selected these men, and took them in their health and strength to fight the battles of the nation. They have kept the faith, and they have won. Now we keep faith with them, and every citizen is indorse on the general obligation.

Under authority and direction of the congress, complete arrangements for rehabilitation of our disabled men have been made by the federal board for vocational education.

According to estimates made since the announcement of the total American overseas casualties, there are more than 200,000 disabled men under treatment in the hospitals in this country and overseas. Of this number more than one-fourth have been disabled by disease. Contrary to the general idea of the casualty list, only a very small percentage of the total have suffered disabilities which resulted in the amputation of limbs.

To Help Every Man.

It is not merely the men who have lost arms or legs that the government is offering to retain and restore to self-supporting activity, but the federal board offers its aid to every man, regardless of his disability, who is entitled to government compensation. The board realizes that the many thousands of men who are suffering from the effects of shell shock, gassing, shrapnel and gunshot wounds which weaken their systems, tuberculosis, bronchitis, heart and nervous diseases, all may be unable to re-enter their former occupations. To all these men, as to those with more evident handicaps, the federal board is extending opportunity.

Within the next few months several thousand disabled men will be training under jurisdiction of the federal board and at the expense of the government. Those who had been actually placed in training were taking courses in a wide range of trades and professions, including 27 different occupations. Industrial schools, colleges, offices and shops throughout the country are being utilized so that most of the men are being trained close to their own homes. Thirty-one per cent of the total now in training are taking commercial courses, 17 per cent are learning the various phases of agriculture, farm management, poultry raising, dairying, etc. Others are studying law, medicine, banking, and some are being trained in engineering, telegraphy, tailoring, window trimming and designing, accounting, store management, machinework practice, meat inspection and traffic management.

Every soldier or sailor enlisted, inducted, or drafted into the military or naval service of the United States who is suffering from disability not due to his own willful misconduct may be entitled to compensation under the war insurance act. It is his duty to present his claim for such compensation in order that it may be passed upon by the bureau of war risk insurance. He can procure full information by applying to the war risk insurance officer at the camp or cantonment, from whom he may get bureau of war risk insurance form 526, which he must fill out in order to prove his eligibility for such compensation.

Government Pays Cost.

If it is not possible to get in contact with this war risk insurance officer, the soldier or sailor should call upon or write the bureau of war risk insurance at Washington, stating his case; or he should call on or write the district office of the federal board for vocational education in which he is located.

If the soldier or sailor is suffering from a disability, he is also eligible for help by the federal board for vocational education in securing employment, which help will be given him in co-operation with the employment service of the department of labor. If he is eligible for compensation under the war risk insurance act, he is also entitled to training and placement by the federal board for vocational education, provided he is not able to follow his old occupation successfully without training or needs to be trained for some new and suitable occupation for which training is feasible.

The federal board for vocational education will bear the entire cost of the man's training. It will pay for his tuition; it will furnish him with books and other necessary supplies, and it will pay all other expenses that may arise in connection with his training. During the time he is following a course of instruction with the federal board he will, if a single man without dependents or a man required by his course of instruction to live apart from his dependents, be paid by the government at least $65 per month. He may be paid more. If, for example, he received more than $65 per month as pay for his last month of active service, he will receive this same pay during his entire course of training. Furthermore, if his disability is such that his monthly compensation under the war risk insurance act is greater than $65, he will, of course, continue to receive this sum, whatever it may be during his entire course.

A married man and his wife will receive $75 per month from the government, provided they live together while he is taking a course of instruction. If his course is such that he must live apart from his wife, the government will pay him $65 per month and his wife $30 per month. The larger his family the larger the amount paid by the government for its support, whether living together or separately while he is being educated.

Allowance to Dependents.

The same allowance and allotment will be paid to dependents as was paid to them while the man was in the active service. If he is married, his wife will receive $30 a month. If he has a wife and child they will receive $40 a month, and $10 will be paid for each additional child up to three. If he has a mother dependent upon him she will receive the same amount she received while he was in the service.

In the case of a commissioned officer undergoing training the support paid by the government will always equal the pay for the last month of active service, an amount always in excess of the minimum guarantee of $65 per month. He will be expected to maintain his dependents out of the amount paid him while undergoing training.

When the disabled soldier has completed his course of training he will receive the compensation prescribed by the war risk insurance act so long as his disability continues.

That there is danger of confusing compensation with insurance payments is shown in the cases of some discharged men to whom compensation had been granted for injuries received in line of duty and who have discontinued payments of their insurance premiums. In some instances they have discontinued such premium payments owing to a mistaken belief that the sums they are receiving monthly from the government were insurance payments.

Only in those cases where the disability from which the man is suffering is total and permanent does the discontinuance of insurance payments by the disabled man who is receiving compensation involve no risk and cause no harm. This is because in cases of total and permanent disability there is a right to recover government insurance payments as well as compensation, which made further premium payments unnecessary as soon as the disability was in fact total and permanent.

Should Verify Payments.

Any man who is receiving what he believes to be the insurance payments should carefully verify that the payments he is so receiving are in fact insurance payments rather than compensation payments, and should not cease making insurance payments until he has definitely determined that the payments he is receiving are government insurance payments rather than compensation payments.

The Red Cross is undertaking to see that every discharged soldier or sailor coming to its attention is fully informed as to his rights to compensation and insurance, and gives assistance in making application for it. When the arrangements for training have been made, the Red Cross is prepared to see that the family receives supplementary assistance or service which may be needed in addition to the provision made by the government. Since, under the law, the taking of vocational training is entirely optional with the man, and his own will and ambition must first be enlisted in order to insure success, the influence of the family may be a vital factor.

Whether a man receives compensation for disability or not, whether he receives re-education or not, the board is ready to help him get a good job. If he is entitled to compensation and goes into training, when his training is finished the board will undertake to find him a place in his new vocation.

All disabled soldiers whether in or out of the hospitals, should address their communications to the federal board for vocational education, Washington, or to the district office of the federal board of the district in which he is located.

SUMMERS CHAPEL.

Hello, everybody. We were absent last week, but we humbly beg your pardon, and promise not to be so careless again.

The last few days have been very windy. Real estate has sure been on the move.

A heavy rain fell Sunday night. All ponds and tanks are full which insures plenty of stock water for some time.

Most everyone reports a good stand of corn. Summers Chapel school closed Friday April 4th.

Emmit Light who got his arm broke while cranking a car, is improving some.

The Worstell basket ball team played the Summers chapel team Friday afternoon. Summers Chapel won the game by four to one. There were quite a few visitors who seemed to enjoy the evening. The Worstell folks are jolly good folks and we were glad to have them come.

Tom McGallard has purchased a new Ford car.

Mrs. Artie Staats was shopping in Vanoss Friday.

George Gray of McGee, who purchased a farm two miles east of the Chapel, is having it fenced and put into cultivation.

We are glad to know that Stratford is going to join Pontotoc, for of course she will. We have always thought Stratford was in the wrong pew anyway.

Stratford is a growing little city and we are glad indeed to have her in Pontotoc.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested foods, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without gripping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

GERMAN ENGINEER IN HIDING FOUR YEARS

SYDNEY, Australia, March 5.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—Konrad Detzler, a German army engineer who had been hiding in the New Guinea jungle four years or since the beginning of the war has come back to civilization and now is in an internment camp in Australia. Detzler's story is on a par with other romantic incidents of the war as it affected the South Sea. Detzler holds a captain's commission. When the war began he was surveying the boundary line between the then Kaiser Wilhelmland or German New Guinea, and Papua, or British New Guinea. He decamped into the bush. This was a risky act, for the bushmen prefer human flesh above all other kinds. When the Australian force occupied Kaiser Wilhelmland, Detzler was overlooked. For more than four years Detzler lived in the bush near Mismis. He had a shotgun but it was not long before he ran out of cartridges. Thereafter he lived on yams, taro and Kau (a variety of sweet potato in common with the natives, and upon birds and animals which he caught by means of snares. Several times the Australians searched for him but Detzler managed to elude them. He might have stayed indefinitely in the jungle, but missionaries told the papuans of the armistice and they in turn told him. Thereupon he surrendered to the nearest Australian officer. While living throughout the war at Mismis, Detzler wore only a lava (native kilt). The result is that he is almost as brown as a Papuan. He now wears a German uniform.

OKLAHOMA AND THE WAR.

From the Miami Daily News. The official report of the Oklahoma council of defense, detailing what the state did during the war, has just been received in Miami. This report is well worth reading. It contains many interesting facts, the most notable of which is that Oklahoma pointed the way for all other states in many details.

One feature of this report that should appeal to all Oklahomans is that this state sent approximately 100,000 men into the army, navy, marines and other branches of the service, and more than 1,000 of these men made the supreme sacrifice, while thousands of others were wounded, some of them being rendered practically helpless through their injuries. This, of course, was Oklahoma's greatest contribution to winning the war. Oklahomans took a total of $74,369,043 Liberty bonds, or $11,417,695 more than the government allotted to this state. That in itself is a magnificent showing, but Oklahomans did not stop there. They gave a total of $5,842,001.85 for war work. Of this the Red Cross received $3,293,001.85; Knights of Columbus $63,000; Y. M. C. A. $436,000 and the United War Work campaign $2,050,000.

This is a record Oklahomans may look back upon for many years to come with pride, but when you stop to think of the drafted men and the cost of induction for each man in this state, compared with others, Oklahoma again excels. It cost the government just $1.57 per man in Oklahoma while North Dakota comes second with $1.83 and Delaware leads in cost with $19 for each man inducted into the service.

This shows Oklahomans did more free work in the selective draft service than the people of any other state, which is another item that should not be overlooked. The average cost of each drafted man, compiled from state reports to the war department, was $4.93.

The report of the state council contains much other valuable information, but these points stand out boldly before all others.

Retaining Youthfulness.

A man who believes that environment saves thousands of lives said to me recently, "Oh, yes, every man is influenced by his environment. I always associate with men who are young, full of enthusiasm, determined to succeed, and who feel that there is no difficulty that is too great for them to surmount. It keeps me youthful. It prolongs my life. Whenever I am in their presence I feel a tremendous amount of enthusiasm, a wonderful zest for living."—Fern Howard.

DOING HIS DUTY

"For two years I suffered agonizing pains in my stomach, belching up sour and bitter fluids and gas. Tongue always coated. Doctors were unable to help me. The first dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy made me feel 100 per cent better, and I am now feeling better than at any time in my life. I deem it my duty to advise other sufferers." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. ## REFINERY AT FRANCIS RAPIDLY BUILDING

The Francis Oil & Refining Co. received, Monday, its first shipment of machinery for its refinery which is now under construction on the company's site at Francis, balance of the machinery will immediately follow this shipment, so we are informed.

The office building and the foundations are now complete, and the receiving house and the boiler rooms are being erected, which are being built of brick, and just as rapidly as the machinery and material arrives the completion of the plant will be rushed as quickly as possible.

An erecting crew from Kansas City, will be on the job within the next few days to erect and test out the machinery.

Since the completion of the low water bridge across the South Canadian river, just northeast of Francis, thereby opening up the Oil Cities Highway through this section of the country, and inasmuch as the Francis Oil & Refining Company's plant is so well located on this famous highway, and considering many other advantages offered there for a refinery, their site unquestionably, could not have been better located; and when this plant is completed, it will be one which Pontotoc county should be well proud of.

GREAT NAMES IN AMERICAN ARMY

PARIS, March 19.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—The first name on the alphabetical list of the American Expeditionary Force is Private Aaa and the last is Corporal Zeppenfeldt. Between the two names are more than 2,000,000 others.

George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, General Ulysses S. Grant, Robert E. Lee, Woodrow Wilson, several Caesars and a few Bismarcks adorn the ranks with intermittent frequency.

Excluding the commander-in-chief of the army and navy, there is but one Woodrow Wilson. He is a private, and according to Stars and Stripes, has just been placed in the working personnel of Base Hospital No. 27, which was organized in Pittsburgh.

There is an abundance of the names of great men including 74 George Washingtons. The name of the first president is surpassed by 79 Robert E. Lees, who holds the record for bearers of the name of great men. There are but two Abraham Lincolns and seven Grants, twelve Caesars and four Bismarcks.

Among the "common people," there are about 51,000 Smiths. True to their traditional predominance of the directories of most cities, they dominate the American Expeditionary Force in numbers. There are 39,000 Johnsons, 22,500 Joneses and a like number of Greens. Sullivans aggregate 10,500, Browns 9,000, and Cohens 4,500.

BOLSHEVIKI TROOPS
DEMAND BIG PAY
By the Associated Press

LONDON, April 11.—Many troops of the Red Army in eastern Russia have adopted trade union methods in dealing with their Bolshevik superiors. They demand fixed pay for each hour of fighting and this, according to official reports to the British government, at times amounts to 20 rubles an hour. The Red Army in that territory is composed of Germans, Finns, Chinese, Poles and recruits from the semi-civilized provinces of Eastern Russia.

Many of the officers are Germans. Others are Russians pressed into service. Every order given by an officer is reported to the commissary and any mistake is punishable by death.
